

Report and Podcasts from The "Languages in the Great War" Workshop at Trinity College Dublin, March 2015

We have made a report and podcasts of our Workshop: 'Enmity, Loyalty, Nation and Empire: Languages in the Great War' available online. It was co-organised by the Centre for War Studies (Trinity College Dublin) and Dr Tamara Scheer of the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute for Social Science History. <https://www.tcd.ie/warstudies/assets/pdf/Languages%20at%20War-Report.pdf>

Podcasts of the Papers are available at the courtesy of the Trinity Long Room Hub. Here are the direct links:

Isa Blumi (Georgia State University): Lost in Translation: Polyglot Armies and the Dangers of Fighting an Insurgency in Ottoman Yemen
<https://soundcloud.com/tlrhub/enmity-loyalty-empire-and-nation-languages-in-the-great-war-isa-blumi>

Tamara Scheer (Ludwig Boltzmann Institute for Social Science History): Languages of Loyalty and Disloyalty in the Habsburg Empire during World War One <https://soundcloud.com/tlrhub/enmity-loyalty-empire-and-nation-languages-in-the-great-war-tamara-scheer>

Franziska Heimburger (University of Glasgow): Friendly and/or enemy languages? Linguistic preparation of the First World War in France, Great Britain and Germany
<https://soundcloud.com/tlrhub/enmity-loyalty-empire-and-nation-languages-in-the-great-war-franziska-heimburger>

Hilary Ann Footitt (University of Reading): Languages at War post 1918: perspectives and methodologies
<https://soundcloud.com/tlrhub/enmity-loyalty-empire-and-nation-languages-in-the-great-war-hilary-footitt>

Sponsored by the Center for War Studies, the Austrian Science Fond (project No. T-602), and the Austrian Embassy in Dublin